KUAM

News, an award winning affiliate of the NBC and CBS News networks and member of media organizations such as the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Television Digital News Association, has been an advocate of news and information for our community for over 66 years. Through the years, our organization has fought for public access to government meetings and records to better serve and inform our local and regional community. In the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, disseminating information is more critical than ever to our people with livelihoods, safety, and health at stake. Our mission to keep you informed and connected is more important than ever. With a lack of transparency and accessibility from our government, the local media's role is being increasingly challenged. Muted questions during press briefings, prescreening of emailed questions, controlled announcements, pre recorded video messages without a proper exchange with the media are not only an assault to the first amendment and our constitutional rights, but leave the community we represent in the dark with their questions unanswered. KUAM News has joined more than 140 media organizations across the country in signing the National Freedom of Information Coalition's call for government transparency. This national, nonpartisan organization advocates for open government to ensure democracy and democratic practices are not further obstructed during this unprecedented time in our history. Urgent access to information is an imperative. Local media organizations are our community's advocates especially during harrowing times. Other organizations are encouraged to join broadcasters, newspapers, digital media, and journalist advocacy groups across the country at www.nfoic.org. #####
